A new garden

Henry Garcia- Alvarez, professional gardener and B&BCAG volunteer; Janice Burke and Mary Olbrich, YCH senior resident gardeners.

From Carol Klesow
Bryte & Broderick Community Action Group

Earlier this month, Yolo County Housing Authority's senior citizen residents planted vegetables, flower seedlings and herbs for tea grown and provided by Bryte &Broderick Community Action Group's Gardens Committee members.

This project was initiated by West Sacramento Youth Resource Coalition (WSYRC). WSYRC Bryte and Broderick youth calling themselves the "Sactown Heros" spent many weekends cleaning and preparing the garden area and gathering new benches, planters and new hoses for the seniors. The new garden is located behind the City of West Sacramento Senior Center. The Sactown Heros created the new garden area by taking an unused grassy area and creating a more water-wise garden area with planting opportunities for senior center participants.

There were many others who provided resources for this project, they include Yolo County Housing, the Senior Center, the City of West Sacramento, Yolo County Master Gardeners, Hasties Capitol Sand and Gravel and the Sactown Heros family and friends. The Yolo County Housing residents would now like help to develop a 20' by 20' foot vegetable plot at the Yolo County Housing Community Garden just outside their back doors.

The Bryte &Broderick Community Action Group's City of Gardens committee is looking at ways to work with these agencies and local residents to improve gardening opportunities for West Sacramento residents.

The group offers "Grow Your Own Food Garden" classes to Broderick and Bryte residents. The goal is to get neighbors together to help each other establish food production in their backyards. Volunteers will come to your backyard and offer classes so you to can grow a successful "2009 Victory Garden".

Visit www.bryteandbroderick.org for more details.

You're also invited to attend the next "City of Gardens" meeting at the Historical Society Museum at the end of this month and participate in the "City of Gardens movement."

Hit by power outage

A major power outage affected West Sacramento customers and caused River City High School's new Southport campus to let students out early on Monday.

"We had an outage impacting West Sacramento, affecting about 8,700 customers," said PG&E spokesperson Brian Swanson. "It was caused by a car accident on East Covell Boulevard west of Mace Boulevard in Davis. A vehicle hit a guy wire supporting a power pole, and the wire snapped into the transmission lines. We had the power restored at about 11:30 a.m."

A staff member at the West Sacramento high school said that after hearing PG&E's projection that power wouldn't be restored until 1:30 p.m., school officials decided to release students early. They arranged for buses to come early, and used electricity from generators to prepare lunch at the cafeteria. Then the kids were sent home.

"As soon as the kids got onto the buses, the power went back on," she added.

Principal to step down

The principal of West Sacramento's "alternative" high school has resigned effective the end of this school year. The school board of Washington Unified School District last week had voted to reassign him from his leadership role back to a teaching job.

Principal Paul Preston confirmed these facts to the News-Ledger yesterday, but was unable to provide more details before the newspaper went to press.

Preston was previously a vice principal at River City High School.

Burning SUV: death ruled a suicide

Authorities have reached a conclusion on the death of a woman found in a burning SUV at the Bridgeway Island Elementary School parking lot last November: it was a suicide.

Robert LaBrash, Supervising Deputy Coroner for Yolo County, said that 25-year old Anya Nicole Seferian died of smoke inhalation after apparently setting her vehicle on fire while she was in it. Her body was found sitting in the driver's seat of the blazing Ford Explorer on Saturday, November 22. LaBrash added that fumes from the fire may have overcome Seferian, helping to explain why she didn't appear to have struggled in the fire.

Lieutenant Tod Sockman of the West Sacramento Police Department said that tests showed an "accelerant" was used to start the fire.

"She used tiki torch oil," he said.

During the investigation of Seferian's death, police found a packet of illegal drugs not far from the scene – but that discovery is now believed to be unrelated to her death, said Sockman.

Victim's SUV had burned in school parking lot, creating mystery for neighbors near Bridgeway Island Elementary School

Seferian had recently returned to West Sacramento from Massachusetts to live with family members.

Bakery expands

The world may be filled with economic bad news right now.

But the baking business is apparently "rising."

United Bakery, founded by Dinh Nguy in 1991, celebrated its bigger new facility on Riverside Parkway (near Reed Avenue) on Friday, with Chinese performers, fireworks, a champagne toast and a luncheon. Among the guests was Mayor Christopher Cabaldon.

The bakery supplies breadsticks, sourdough and ciabatta to markets, restaurants and delis -- including Safeway and Raley's in West Sacramento. The new 20,000 square foot facility replaces the 9,300 bakery on Boatman Avenue, near Harbor Blvd. The company came to West Sacramento in 2003.

Owners Dinh and Mina Guy hosted the public for the grand opening -- full of color, noise and flavors.

Financing was provided by First Northern Bank and California Capital, helped with an $850,000 loan financed through West Sacramento and the state's Community Development BLock Grant program.

The expansion is expected to create 38 new jobs.

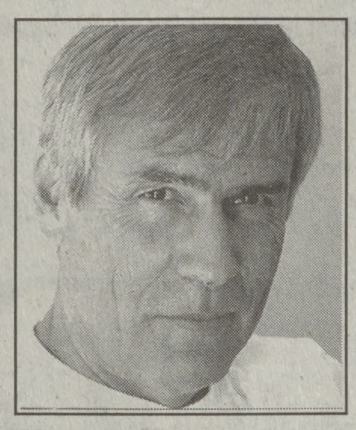
My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

I was talking to some people the other day about the current financial mess our country finds itself in and was a little shocked by some of the stuff I heard. For instance, one very angry man about my age explained how his mother had left him almost $300,000 upon her death a few years ago and now more than 65-percent of it is gone. "I was a pretty aggressive investor," he reluctantly admitted, "but the financial people who were advising me had great reputations and none of us ever dreamed the stock market could take the kind of dive it has. Now I'm going to have to put my retirement off for at least a couple of more years – which really sucks — and you want to know who I blame for that – Obama!"

"Obama?" another man quickly asked. "But he's only been in office for a few weeks and he inherited this whole mess from the previous administration, so how can you blame him?"

"I'll tell you why I blame him," said the angry man who had lost 65-percent of his mother's money, "because he keeps going all over the country telling everyone who will listen that the world is coming to an end, and that things are only going to get worse before they get better. Well, let me tell you, that is the very last thing Wall Street – and Main Street for that matter – wants to hear! He's got to get his butt out there and tell everyone that everything is going to be just fine, and that things are going to be right back to business as usual before we know it."

"So, you want the man to lie to us like a bunch of spoiled children who can't handle the truth?" asked the Obama supporter.

"If that's what it takes – you're damned right!"

Since this is a family newspaper, I can't really get into where the conversation went from there, but as I'm thinking back on it now, I do find it very interesting that truth-telling is often considered a no-no when it comes to the nation's fiscal well-being, because much of our economy's health is apparently based on financial shell games and the need for blind consumer confidence. I've always believed that the truth will set you free, but I guess that doesn't apply to the kind of unregulated and greedy-beyond-belief free-market capitalism our nation has been practicing lately.

Actually, according to one financial expert I heard on PBS the other night, when it comes to the current recession/depression, politicians are indeed keeping (as best they can) the real truth away from the American public. He said it was his belief that the mess we're in has at least another three or four years to run, and that if the Obama administration doesn't get even more aggressive about throwing taxpayer money at the problem, that number could be as much as ten years. He also said it would be at least two years before the housing crisis begins to ease, that the toxic assets owned by many of our nation's biggest banks will need a couple of trillion more federal dollars to buy them all up, and that by the time full recovery is under way, the nation could be eight or nine trillion dollars in debt. And he added that the real anger Americans are going to feel for being a pawn in all this corruption and greed won't hit the fan for another year or so, and that the kind of political instability it is going to create in such places as China, Russia and Latin America should keep us all awake at night.

Anyway, I've always considered myself pretty much an idiot when it comes to high finance, and my family and friends have enjoyed making fun of me for putting any extra money I came across in federally insured CD's. "With the kind of low interest rates those things pay," they used to tell me, "you might as well be putting your money in a sock and sticking it under your mattress. You need to be investing it in the stock market where it can really work for you." These, of course, are sadly the same people who can no longer bear to even open up their 401K statements.

No, I'm afraid what little money I have has never worked very hard for me. In fact, I think it's fair to say it's never really even broken a good sweat. But since I have always believed that turning hard-earned money over to Wall Street isn't much different from pulling a slot machine lever in Las Vegas, I have at least never had to live in fear of the Bernie Madoff's of this world. That doesn't keep me from asking myself a few basic questions, however. For instance, when it comes to the nation's finances, do Americans really have to be treated like morons by our politicians, fearful that we can't deal with the truth? And for this country to be economically successful, do we really all have to continue to consume everything in sight, and keep buying crap we don't need with credit cards we can't afford? And for our beloved capitalism to work and give us all better lives, does the day-to-day mechanics of it have to be entrusted to the greediest, most over-paid, amoral men on the face of the earth?

Well, when I find myself bedeviled by such profound questions dealing with the human condition, I have found a rather unique place to get answers – old Frank Capra movies. And in this particular case, I have turned to "Meet John Doe", which was made in 1941 (just as we were starting to get out of the Great Depression), starring Gary Cooper and Barbara Stanwyck. I won't bore you with the long and complicated plot, but I do want to pass along a few paragraphs of dialogue uttered by crusty old Walter Brennan, Cooper's sidekick in the movie:

"When they got ya, you've got no more chance than a road rabbit. You're walkin' along, not a nickel in your jeans, you're free as the wind. Nobody bothers you. Hundreds of people pass you by in every line of business. Shoes, hats, automobiles, radios, furniture, everything, and they're all nice, loveable people. They let you alone. Then you get ahold of some dough and what happens? All those nice, sweet, lovable people become heelots. A lot of heels! They begin creepin' up on ya, trying to sell ya something. They got long claws and they get a stranglehold on ya and ya squirm and duck and holler and try to push `em away, but you don't have a chance. They got ya. The first thing you know, you own things – a car for instance. Now your whole life is messed up with a lot more stuff. You got license fees and number plates and gas and oil and taxes and insurance and identification cards and letters and bills and flat tires and dents and traffic tickets and motorcycle cops and courtrooms and lawyers and fines – and a million and one other things! And what happens? You're not the free and happy guy you used to be. You've gotta have money to pay for all those things. So you go after what the other fella's got. And there you are – you've become a heelot yourself."

So, there you have it, the real reason why we're in such an incredible financial mess – we've allowed ourselves to become a nation of heelots!

River City High School tennis squad is off to winning start

The River City High School tennis team won its first three Capital Valley Conference (CVC) matches of the 2009 season over the past ten days. Combined with non-league wins over Amador, Bear River and Argonaut, the Raiders are off to a 6-0 start.

In the three CVC victories, RC defeated Center 7-2 and both Antelope and Foothill 8-1. Jim Saetern took apart his three opponents at the #2 boys singles spot, while Lydia Maystruk and Thomas Thao both won two out of their three singles contests. The Radiers received three wins in the #2 boys doubles matches from the duo of Vinh Vu and Rudy Maltez, and Monica Anaya won her three girls doubles matches while partnering with three different teammates, Ranika Prasad, Sarah Aguilar and Lai Saetern.

Against Antelope, RC's #2 girls doubles team of Marisa Arellano and Katharina Najork shutout their opponents 10-0, as did the mixed doubles pair of Tuyet Hoang and Victor Vang. Tou Vang also had an impressive CVC start, winning in mixed doubles with Arellano against Center and teaming with Vongsri Vang in wins versus Antelope and Foothill at #1 boys doubles.

Last week's 5-2 win against Argonaut came against a nonleague playoff team from last year and provided a tough test for the host Raiders. Thao won 10-0 in boys singles while Maystruk fell 9-10(1) in girls singles. RC took four of the five doubles matches as Jim Saetern and Vongsri Vang won 10-4 at #1 boys and Vu and Maltez cruised 10-1 at #2. Arellano and Tou Vang dropped the mixed doubles but Prasad and Aguilar earned a hard-fought 10-7 victory in the top girls pairing and Anaya and Lai Saetern breezed to a 10-3 win in the #2 slot.

In the week ahead, Bret Harte comes to RC this Friday and the Raiders travel to the Rio Del Oro Racquet Club next Tuesday for a CVC match with Sacramento Country Day. Matches begin at 4 pm.

March Madness tips off on Tuesday night in Dayton, Ohio with its traditional opening round game to establish which team will be take the place as the 16th seed in the Midwest Regional bracket and join the other 63 teams in the 2009 NCAA Division I Men's Tournament.

This year, Alabama State (22-9) will play Moorhead State (19-15) to earn the right to play on Friday in Dayton against in the No. 1 seed and tournament favorite, Louisville (28-5). Joining the Louisville Cardinals as No. 1 seeds are the Pittsburgh Panthers, Connecticut Huskies and North Carolina Tar Heels.

The Pac-10 did alright with Arizona, Arizona State, USC, Washington, Cal and three time consecutive finalist UCLA being invited to the Big Dance! The "Big Dance" for the Final Four teams will be on April 6th in Detroit.

The Women's NCAA Tournament also begins on Saturday with Duke, Oklahoma, Maryland and the No. 1 seeded and undefeated Connecticut (33-0) enjoying the top seeds in brackets. The Cal and Stanford women made it to the big dance and hope to be celebrating at the Women's Final Four on April 7th in St. Louis.

Kings Korner

The Kings (14-52) continue their road game blues after losing 106-104 to the Wizards in Washington D.C. The Wiz (16-51), who have the second worst record in the NBA are battling the Kings for ping pong balls to use in this year's draft lottery. The Kings have now lost to the Wizards seven consecutive times and are 0-26 this year against the Eastern Division teams.

To make manners worse, the Kings will lose the services of Bobby Jackson while he recuperates from his surgery on his fractured left cheekbone. The good news is that the Kings are playing much better (2-8) since they changed nearly half of their roster but the chances at the No. 1 pick in the draft lottery are looking good!

The Kings will be on the road this week in Atlanta followed by a Wednesday night (4 p.m.-CSNCA) game in Charlotte and New York on Friday night (4:30 p.m.-ch.10). The Kings will return to the Arco on Sunday, March 22nd (6 p.m.) to host the 76ers.

Diamond Notes

Is it me, or is the World Baseball Classic boring? I just can't get myself to sit down and watch an inning of this tournament. Maybe it's because the USA team isn't using their best players available to represent our national pastime or is it that Latin American teams are fielding their best major leaguers?

The USA is down to their last catcher on the roster and has already sent home with injuries Dustin Pedroia, Chipper Jones, Ryan Braun and Matt Lindstrom with a strained right rotator cuff. Other countries like Japan, South Korea and Cuba are loaded up with their top players and have advanced to the semifinals.

Anyway, the USA will play Puerto Rico on Tuesday night to try to revenge the 10-run rule beating the Puerto Ricans inflicted on the Red, White and Blue last week. The winner advances to the semifinals this weekend in Los Angeles. Attendance and TV ratings have been at little weak for the tournament with an announced crowd of only 25,599 watching Venezuela beat Puerto Rico in Miami.

Speaking of getting rough-up, spring training has been very unkind to Giants pitcher Barry Zito who is struggling again trying to find some velocity on his pitches. Zito has given up 11 earned runs in 13 innings and has an ERA of 7.24 in four starts.

The A's, who are still waiting for Eric Chavez to come around, are using Nomar Garciaparra at third base as insurance. The A's also made some cuts sending third baseman Jeff Baisley, second baseman Eric Patterson and pitcher Ryan Webb to West Sacramento to play for the River Gatos.

Since we're taking about the Gatos, the Sacramento River Cats have put individual game tickets on sale for the 2009 season. The team will begin its 2009 Raley Field regular season schedule and defense of their back-to-back PCL and Triple-A Baseball championships on Thursday, April 9 against the Tacoma Rainiers (Triple-An affiliate of the Seattle Mariners) at 7:05 p.m.

The Raley Field ticket office will be open from 10:00 a.m. to 4 p.m. every day to purchase tickets or you can go on online at Rivercats.com, Ticketmaster.com and all Ticketmaster outlets.

Between the Ropes

West Sacramento based heavyweight Oleg Maskaev (36-6) won his bout in Russia last week with a quick knockout of little known Rich Boruff in the first round. Maskaev, who is trying to win back his WBC title, is in line to fight the winner of next Saturday's bout between champion Vitali Klitschko and Juan Carlos Gomez.

The Arco Arena boxing card featuring Vicente Escobedo has been rescheduled to Thursday, April 30th.

Enjoy your day- see ya next week!

How the foster care system works

By Beth Gabor, Yolo County Public Information Officer & Kimberly Bellows, U.C. Davis Intern

Last month, we provided an overview of Yolo County Child Welfare Services (CWS) – a division of the Department of Employment & Social Services (DESS). One component of this division is foster care services, which administers the provision of care, by members of the community, to children who regrettably must be removed from the care of their parents for their safety.

When it becomes necessary for CWS to remove children from their home, they are temporarily placed in foster care, either in a licensed home or in the home of a relative, with the intent to ultimately return the child to their home once it has been determined that they can be safely cared for by their parents. Some foster children remain in foster care on a more permanent basis. In these situations, the foster parent or relative may adopt the child or take legal guardianship.

It can be a challenging task for those generous community members who choose to become foster parents as many foster children have emotional or physical issues. As a result, Yolo County suffers from a shortage of foster homes and often must send children in need of an out-of-home placement out of the county – a less than optimal situation for foster children already established in the community. It is also a less than optimal situation for CWS social workers. Social workers are required to visit each child on a monthly basis, regardless of where the child is placed. To minimize further disruption to the lives of children in the foster care system, CWS continually works to recruit additional foster parents, emphasizing that the main criteria for being a foster parent is the ability to provide a stable home environment.

"Foster parents can be single or married, living in a house or an apartment," said DESS Chief Deputy Diana Williams. "We simply need foster parents who can provide a good home."

Once a child within the foster care system reaches the age of 18, they must leave the system and live on their own – a difficult transition for any 18-year-old. Many CWS programs across the nation have implemented Independent Living Programs, which provide foster youth the tools to make such a transition. Yolo County has instituted such a program, run through DESS, which provides youth access to training, support, community services and resources. Foster youth can participate in the program as early as age 15 to begin to develop life skills such as budgeting, finding and keeping a job, and doing laundry. DESS offers incentives to encourage these teenagers to participate in the program.

Youth continue to be eligible for services after emancipation until they are 21 years of age, as long as they were in out-of-home care on, or after, their 16th birthday. These services provide youth between the ages of 18 and 20 the assistance necessary to obtain resources such as transportation, tuition for college or vocational education, clothing for job interviewa, furniture and other household supplies, or in making a security deposit toward a living arrangement.

"Studies show that on average, the young are not truly on their own until age 28," said Diana Williams. "Foster children don't generally have the support system they need to bridge them from childhood to adulthood. We do what we can to provide it for them."

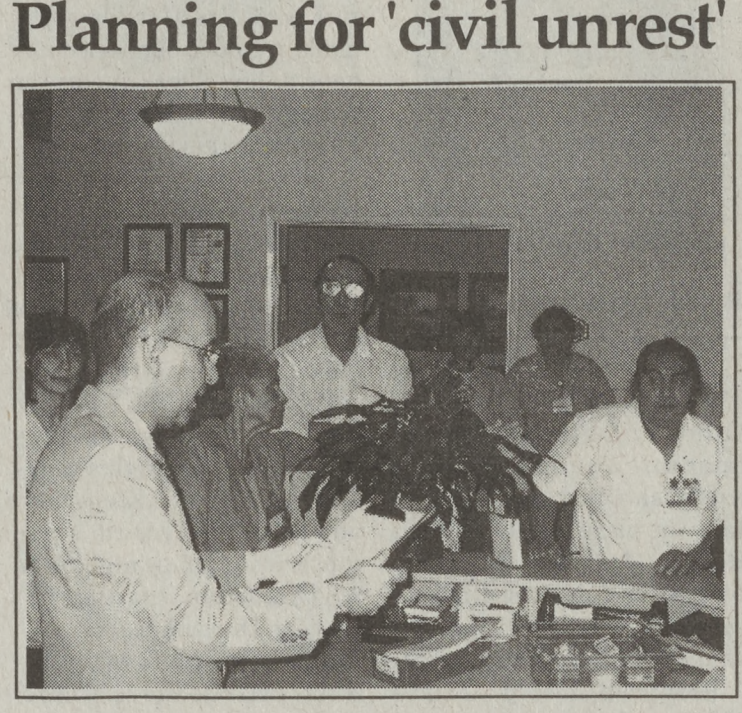
Planning for 'civil unrest'



River Bend Nursing Center administrator Eric Rodriques (above, with clipboard) said his facility conducted a disaster drill March 10.

"The exercise addressed the potential for civil disorder and unrest stemming from the current economic downturn," he said in a press statement.

The facility is host to a number of elderly residents.

"We plan for every eventuality, whether it is a levee break and flood, a building fire, or the possibility of civil unrest from a down economy."

The drill put the center into "lock down" mode during two simulated attacks from intruders.

The facility is located on Oakmont Way.

The Good, the Bad & the Ugly -- guest commentary from Stu Greenfeld

By Stu Greenfeld

Given my age, health and other issues, I try not to get angry or mad when I see people doing crazy and dangerous things. However, it is getting harder to just accept or ignore some human behaviors. The ones that I react most to are those behaviors that may kill me or some other innocent person. Here are some examples that scare me and cause me to be angry. They have to do with driving cars, trucks and other motorized vehicles.....

Recently, I saw a guy with a cigarette in one hand and a cell phone in the other. He was driving a large truck and guiding it down the freeway with his knees. Just a day later, I saw a woman driving her SUV while trying to eat a salad. She was holding the salad bowl with one hand and using a fork, held in the other hand, to shovel the tasty lettuce, tomatoes, onions and other ingredients into her mouth. She also was trying to steer her SUV down Jefferson Blvd with her knees.

Some of the my other sightings include: a woman brushing her hair and checking herself out in the mirror while driving; a guy reading his paper and driving; a guy using an electric shaver, looking in the mirror, while driving and a woman putting on eye make up and driving. In addition, although it is now illegal, I have seen truck drivers continuing to operate computers and/or texting while driving their trucks.

I thought that I had seen or heard it all until a week or so ago. A woman was pulled over in Ohio. She had been nursing her child while she drove her car. Let me be clear, Ohio does not have a law against nursing your child in public (at least, I don't think it does). The woman was cited for operating a vehicle in an unsafe manner.

I don't care about these people not giving themselves enough time to complete their activities at home and I sure don't want to deprive a newborn of its nourishment. What does bother me, is that people are doing these things while driving a vehicle that can cause death and destruction. These people will not be picked up for driving under the influence, but they can be just as deadly as any DUI individual. Please folks, use your head and don't do things that can harm or kill others or yourselves. Those individuals who persist in driving recklessly have definitely Made My Book

My wife and I have been over to the new West Sacramento Recreation Facility located at the River City High School. The equipment is bountiful, the services are great and the employees are upbeat and extremely helpful. There are all sorts of classes and activities that you can engage in and enjoy. Programs to increase your health are available at convenient times and the cost is minimal. The City of West Sacramento can be rightfully proud of this wonderful addition to our community. Give yourself a treat and go over and explore the potential use of our new recreational facilities. I think that you will be pleasantly surprised at what awaits you. The facility, employees and programs have definitely Made My Book.

The sun is out, spring is in the air. It is time to start thinking about working in the garden. Go out and take advantage of the sales at Lowes, Home Depot, Supply Hardware, Target, Walmart and of course, my favorite hardware store: Hollywood Hardware. Your garden will appreciate the attention and our economy will treasure your expenditures. Even in these hard times, there is always something to be thankful for and to appreciate. You Made My Book.

Program to allow 'safe surrender' of babies expands

From the County of Yolo

This month, the Yolo County Board of Supervisors designated the University of California, Davis (UC Davis) Fire Department as a Yolo County Safe Haven for the surrender of newborns. The UC Davis Fire Department joins fire departments in the cities of Davis, West Sacramento and Woodland previously designated as Yolo County Safe Havens.

The Safely Surrendered Baby law, which was implemented on January 1, 2001, allows immunity from criminal prosecution to parents when surrendering an infant at a public or private hospital, a designated fire station, or other "safe surrender" sites. Governor Schwarzenegger extended the law into permanent legal status effective January 1, 2006. The Safely Surrendered Baby law is intended to spare the life of an infant by encouraging parents, or persons with lawful custody, to safely surrender an infant at a "safe surrender" site within 72 hours of the child's birth rather than abandoning the child in an unsafe location. As of June 30, 2008, 251 newborns have been safely surrendered in California.

On September 23, 2003, the Yolo County Board of Supervisors adopted a resolution which initiated Yolo County's "Safely Surrendered Baby Campaign." The Yolo County Department of Employment & Social Services has since provided training and materials to member agencies in an effort to make the campaign a success. Two babies were safely surrendered in Yolo County in 2008.

"I believe it is important to protect newborn babies in our community, and to offer a safe alternative to their parents for their nurturance," said Yolo County Board of Supervisors Vice-Chairwoman Helen M. Thomson. "We are grateful to the UC Davis Fire Department for providing this safe haven for newborns at risk."

"Our campus fire department welcomes the opportunity to provide a safe haven to newborns," said Chief Joe Perry, UC Davis Fire Chief. "UC Davis is well suited for this statewide program because the campus is open to the public and it provides a safe environment for the campus community."

"Fire departments are not required by law to be Safe Havens so it is exciting that our local fire departments have opted to provide this service to help save the lives of babies," said Diana Williams, Chief Deputy Director, Yolo County Department of Employment & Social Services.

Learn a little about West Sacramento history -- and maybe have some BBQ

From Louisa Vessell
West Sacramento Historical Society

The Yolo County Historical Society (YCHS) and the West Sacramento Historical Society (WSHS) will hold their annual joint meeting Sunday, March 22 from 2 - 4:00 p.m. at the Jazzyblues Cafe located at 319 6th Street in the Broderick district of West Sacramento (916-372-0080, www.jazzybluescafe.com).

After a short YCHS business meeting, local historian Jeri Wingfield will provide a 45 minute presentation about the history of West Sacramento. She will be joined by Roger Sornsen, a longtime resident of Broderick, who has led the effort to restore the WSHS fire trucks displayed nearby. The meeting will conclude with a tour of the W S H S Museum and Visitor Center located four blocks from the restaurant at 324 Third Street. Following the meeting, the guests can take an optional walking tour of the historic 4th Street to learn more about the Washington District and the Delta Style Victorian homes that remain. The tour will be lead by Martha Mills, a resident and homeowner.

The Jazzyblues Cafe will open early in case visitors wish to eat at the restaurant ahead of the meeting. There is no charge to attend the meeting. RSVP to Martha Mills at martham@wavecable.com or 916-373-1892, if you are interested in the optional 4th Street walk and or fire truck display.

GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS

BY DNA SMITH

PICK OF THE WEEK

"Quantum of Solace" — Daniel Craig returns as superspy James Bond in this sequel to "Casino Royale." The film picks up right after the events at the end of the previous movie, and we get a glimpse into 007's past and a key to who he is as a man. The movie then kicks into gear concerning a plot to control the water rights of a Third World country. OK, not the most intriguing plot for a Bond flick, but they can't all be about defusing nuclear bombs in underground lairs.

"Quantum" is a much darker and moodier film than "Casino Royale," and some critics and Bond fans thought it didn't live up to its predecessor. I think it worked well as the second act of a much longer film — a kind of "Casino Royale Part Deux." So, if you liked "Casino Royale," then I think you'll enjoy "Quantum," if you think of it as a continuation of the previous film and not as a stand-alone adventure.

FOR THE COMICS GEEK

"Watchmen: Tales of the Black Freighter and Under the Hood" — This is a tie-in DVD release to the "Watchmen" theatrical film. This DVD set is basically two major set-pieces that were made for the film but had to be cut for time. "Tales of the Black Freighter" is an "animated comic book" of a story-within-a-story element of the original Watchmen graphic novel. It's a comic book about the adventures of a pirate (voiced by Gerard Butler of "300"), and his story mirrors the plot of the Watchmen movie/graphic novel. "Under The Hood" is a live-action film that provides the backstory to how The Nite Owl and the other heroes from the film came together as a team for the first time.

TV SERIES

"Andy Richter Controls the Universe: The Complete Series" — Holy Moly. I feel like an angel has been sent down from heaven to give me a puppy. I LOVED this show when it originally aired in 2002, and I never thought it would ever be released on DVD. Fox didn't know how to market a show this original, so it kept changing its time slot from week to week. Then, after 19 episodes, it pulled the plug. "Andy Richter Controls the Universe" is one of those smart, funny, well-written shows like "Arrested Development" and "30 Rock" that you simply look forward to watching again and again. To try and describe this quirky, delightful show is almost impossible. Just watch it — because you probably missed it the first time around.

Fast Food From the Freezer

Let's just face it, after a long day at work (or play), most of us don't want to prepare a meal. But with just a little planning, your freezer can become your favorite "fast food" place. Filling your freezer with pre-prepared meals saves time and money. It also ensures you'll be eating something that is healthier than the typical fast-food meal. When you freeze meals in advance, you control the quality of the ingredients and the amount of salt. Almost everything from appetizers for dinner parties and breakfast dishes to complete meals and desserts can be frozen in advance with the proper planning and preparation.

I usually prepare all of my family's meals for the week on either Saturdays or Mondays. Sometimes I just cook all the meat or main dishes. Then all I have to do is steam some vegetables or prepare a salad and dinner is served. I also prepare a few extra meals — using some of the same meats, spices or ingredients I already have on hand — and freeze them. By using a few freezer fast-food tips, you can serve a well-balanced meal in minutes, and save money by preparing meals in advance and freezing them.

1) Preparing meals in advance means you'll have large amounts of food to shop for and to put away. Plan your meals, make a list and shop in advance. It's never a good idea to cook on the same day that you grocery shop. It's better to plan the shopping trip for one day and cooking for another day. This also allows you to take advantage of any sales you might find on meats or vegetables while at the grocery store. You can also cook several different kinds of meats or main dishes and stock your freezer so that you have enough "fast food" meals for two to six weeks.

2) I try to use recipes with similar ingredients or cooking times so that I can chop up all the vegetables I need at one time, or bake more than one dish in the oven. You can also stock your freezer by doubling the meals that you make during the week. You can serve one of the dishes and then stock your freezer with the other. Make sure you securely wrap and seal your make-ahead meals to prevent freezer burn. Write the name of the dish and the date on a label or on the plastic wrap or plastic freezer bag to make the dishes easier to identify.

3) Using freezer- and microwave-safe, divided plates is one of the best ways to store individual, homemade frozen dinners. Leftovers are perfect for these frozen dinners. The divided plates make the meals easy to defrost and re-heat in the microwave.

FAST FREEZER TURKEY PATTIES

These turkey patties are great as a main dish topped with some sautéed mushrooms and served with a side of rice and a salad. They're also great for a quick sandwich using pita bread or on a hamburger bun. You can season and shape the patties and then wrap and freeze them all, or cook and serve some of them and freeze the rest.

- 5 pounds ground turkey
- 3/4 cup heavy cream
- 4 Eggland's Best eggs
- 2 tablespoons Italian seasoning
- 2 1/2 tablespoons vegetable oil, divided
- 2 tablespoons chopped garlic
- 1 small onion, diced
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 2 teaspoons pepper
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 1/4 cups fine breadcrumbs

Mix the cream, eggs and Italian seasoning together in a large bowl. Cover and refrigerate. Using a large skillet, add 1/2 tablespoon of the oil to the pan and sauté the garlic and onion in the oil until tender. Leave the vegetables in the pan and set aside to cool.

Add the turkey, the salt, pepper, the Worcestershire sauce and the vegetables to the cream mixture and combine well. Slowly add the breadcrumbs; don't overmix. Divide into seven-ounce, 1/2-inch-thick patties.

Add the remaining 1 1/2 tablespoons oil to the skillet. Heat on medium. Add the patties, a batch at a time. Cook 5 minutes on each side, or until no longer pink in the center and meat thermometer reaches 165 F. Serve immediately or cool and wrap patties individually in plastic wrap and place them into a large freezer bag. Label and date the bag. Yield: 15 servings. Trattoria-Style Shrimp Fettuccine

Classic and quite simple to prepare, this shrimp and pasta dish can be served on its own thanks to the bag of fresh spinach that gets incorporated at the last minute.

- 12 ounces fettuccine or spaghetti
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 medium (6- to 8-ounce) onion, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, thinly sliced
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 1 bottle (8-ounce) clam juice
- Salt
- 1 pound shelled and deveined large shrimp, with tail part of shell left on if you like
- 1 bag (5- to 6-ounce) baby spinach
- 1/3 cup (loosely packed) fresh parsley leaves, chopped

1. Heat large covered saucepot of salted water to boiling on high. Add pasta and cook as label directs.

2. Meanwhile, in 12-inch skillet, heat oil on medium until hot. Add onion and garlic, and cook 10 minutes or until golden and tender, stirring often. Add wine; increase heat to medium-high and cook 1 minute. Stir in clam juice and 1/2 teaspoon salt; heat to boiling. Stir in shrimp, and cook 2 to 3 minutes or until shrimp turn opaque throughout.

3. Drain pasta and add to skillet with spinach and parsley; toss to coat. Serves 6.

Talking Out of School: Memoir of an Educated Woman
by Kass Fleisher
(Dalkey Archive Press, $13.95)
Reviewed by Katy B. Olson

Biting, witty and occasionally even venomous, professor and author Kass Fleisher's memoir "Talking Out of School: Memoir of an Educated Woman" chronicles not just the author's own tumultuous education within and outside of university lecture halls, but also the tenuous state of women's higher education in America today. Alternating between moral outrage and personal regret, the author tackles, through personal observations and experiences both reassuring and daunting, the many issues plaguing today's colleges and universities.

Perhaps most formative of her personality, and most compelling in her telling, is Fleisher's chaotic childhood, which was spent under the watchful eye and violent arm of an abusive mother — one who played the part of respected teacher and admired union leader at school, but remained a volatile tyrant at home. Maintaining this lifelong, tightrope-walk relationship with her duplicitous mother equips Fleisher to take on her college's injustices, but also allows her to fall prey to them.

Later, Fleisher works as an adjunct professor in a small, homogenous college, where she is forced to confront her own demons in order to expose the sexism and racism often at play in classrooms and offices alike. Yet in recognizing her own prejudices, she manages to find a freeing, if tenuous, kind of autonomy.

Affective in its brutal honesty, "Talking Out of School" raises uncomfortable but crucial questions about how deeply embedded issues of gender, class and race are within our country's revered institutions of higher learning. Fleisher's personal experience — from the high, as the only grandchild in her mom's family to graduate, to the lows, in which she discards the principles she all along meant to advocate — make the seemingly overworked issues of gender and race politics real, relevant and, perhaps most significantly, clear as day.
